CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Booth from the committee on public lands, reported with amendment the Senate bill relating to the indemnity school selection in the State of California placed upon the calendar.

Windom, from the committee on public lands, reported favorably on the House bill to amend the act of Dec. 28, 1874 for the relief of certain settlers on public lands, passed. It extends the provision of the act mentioned for one year so as not to deprive homestead settlers who were driven from their homes by the locust plague of their rights.

The resolution proposing a common unit of money and accounts for the United States and Great Britain, which was discussed last Monday, was called up and passed.

Kelly called up the Senate bill for the relief of the sureties of J. M. Huntington, deceased, late superintendent of Indian affairs in Oregon, passed.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the legislative judicial and executive appropriation bill. The pending question being the motion of Edmunds to recommit the bill to the committee on appropriations. It was withdrawn.

The question then being on the amendment submitted by Edmunds, providing that all appointments in the departments of the government shall be upon careful and impartial examination of candidates by a board of examiners. Howe opposed it, as did also Christiancy and Eaton, and it was rejected, 10 against 28.

The question was then on Clayton's amendment that appointments in all executive departments of the government shall be so arranged as to be equally divided between the several States of the United States, Territories, and the District of Columbia, according to the population, and that the principle of equal distribution of appointments, as above provided for, shall apply in making reductions of force in said departments. The amendment was subsequently amended by giving honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, preference for appointments. The vote on this was nearly unanimous, the nays being McCreery, Merrimon and Saulsbury.

Clayton's amendment, as amended, was rejected —22 against 23. The California Senators voted with the majority, Kelly, Mitchell and Jones, with the minority.

Clayton submitted the following: "Provided that, in making the reduction of the force, the heads of departments shall retain those persons who may be qualified and who have become disabled in the military or naval service of the United States, and the widows of deceased soldiers; agreed to unanimously.

The amendments proposed by Howe, increasing the appropriation for tools and the improvement of the botanical garden from $3,000 to $5,000, and a like appropriation for the purchase of books for the library of Congress from $5,000 to $9,000, were agreed to; also the amendment appropriating $2,500, instead of $1,500, for newspapers and periodicals for the library.

Various amendments of unimportant character proposed by the committee on appropriations were agreed to and the bill was then reported to the Senate and passed—34 against 7.

The fortification appropriation bill then came up, and it was passed without amendment.

The silver bill was taken up in order to have it as unfinished business to-morrow.

After a short executive session, the Senate adjourned.

House.

The House bill repealing sections of the revised statutes making restrictions in the disposal of public lands in Southern States, was passed by 106 against 97.

Wood, from the committee on ways and means, submitted the unanimous report of that committee in regard to the Alaska Commercial Co. The report recites that the committee has made a full investigation into the law and facts relating to the granting of the lease to the Alaska Commercial Co for the right to take seals on the Islands of St. Paul and St. George, and that the committee find that the lease was made in accordance with the act approved July 1st, 1870, and has been complied with on the part of the lessees, and is for the advantage of the United States; and declaring it to be the opinion of the House that there was no ground of complaint against the Alaska Commercial Co or against the officers of the government who were instructed to make the lease and see it enforced and that they are entitled to the enjoyment of the franchise so long as said company complies with the requirements of the law under which it holds its right. The report was agreed to without discussion.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the bill for the distribution of unappropriated moneys of the Geneva award, and was addressed by Lord, who had reported from the judiciary committee.

Knott spoke in opposition. Recess until evening.

At the evening session there was but a very thin attendance of members. Speeches were made on the Geneva award bill by Davis and Hewett, and on political questions by Nash. At 9:25 the House adjourned.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Mitchell moved to take up the resolution reported by the committee on privileges and elections to pay B. P. S. Pinchback the compensation and mileage of a Senator from Louisiana, from the beginning of the term for which he was contestant to the termination of the contest. Several Senators on the Democratic side objected, and the yeas and nays being called, the motion to take it up was rejected, yeas 19, nays 19. Christiancy voting with the Democrats in the negative.

The bill to amend the laws relating to legal tender of silver coin known as the silver bill, was taken up and Morrill of Vermont, spoke at length against the bill as reported by the committee on finance.

Booth referred to the provisions of the bill and said the new act as proposed to be introduced, not only failed to reconcile those already in use, but it was an instrument against reconciliation. If this bill should be passed the value of silver would be somewhat enhanced by the new use created for it, but just how much no one could tell. He opposed the bill and argued that it might be operative for a period, but it would only be temporary. If it should be passed, and the resumption act of 1875 not repealed, the effect would be that all the bills of $20 and less would be redeemed in silver and the larger ones in gold. He had no doubt that greenbacks and gold could be brought to a common value, but he did not expect to inaugurate the millenium by legislative enactment. It was the true policy of the country to bring every form of money used to the same standard of value and it should be a gold standard. It could be accomplished by national notes more than by any bank notes. He believed the funded debt of the United States should be paid in gold; that forms of currency in use should be equivalent in value; that gold is the only standard of value and that the government should use the national credit in the form of national notes and not lend it to banks. He argued that the interest on the funded debt should be reduced to the lowest possible sum, and U. S. notes should be maintained at a gold standard. This he believed could be done by the issue of interconvertible bonds, the interest on which should be paid in gold. He then referred to the national bank system and said it was probably the best we ever had; but if one-fourth of the attention had been given to improving the national currency, which had been given to banks and the maintenance of a strictly official and complicated system, greenbacks would have been at par with gold long ago. He then spoke at some length in favor of interconvertible bonds, and in conclusion, said he had no idea that it would at once start the laggard wheels of industry, but it would inspire it.

Sherman spoke at length in favor of the bill, declaring that Congress ought not to adjourn without making provision against the scarcity of small change.

The bill was postponed until the 20th.

The Senate then went into executive session and shortly after adjourned.

House.

The post route bill was taken up and passed.

Luttrell, from the postoffice committee, reported a bill, the object of which is to prevent what is known as the system of straw bids.

Knott from the judiciary committee, reported a bill prescribing oaths to be taken by grand and petit jurors in U. S. courts. In the course of the discussion it was explained that this was proposed to repeal the iron clad oath. Attention was called to the fact that under this bill forbidding any other oath than that prescribed to be administered, conspirators could sit upon juries on the trial of their co-conspirator, so that members of the whisky ring at Milwaukee and elsewhere might sit upon grand and petit juries. Pending discussion, the morning hour expired and the bill went over until to-morrow.

On motion of Tucker the amendment to the bill in relation to the execution of custom house bonds was concurred in.

Lord took the floor to call up the Geneva award bill, but yielded to Blaine in relation to the motion which he made yesterday to consider the vote by which testimony taken before the judiciary committee was ordered to be printed. He wanted to have embodied in the proceedings the dispatch received by Knott from Josiah Caldwell in London also what took place in committee yesterday.

Hunton said he had no sort of objection to that.

Objection, however, was made by Southard.

After the disposal of some minor matters, Tarbox rose to a matter of personal privilege, but Lord, who had charge of the Geneva award bill, raised a question of consent.

The speaker pro tem. Cox decided that a question of personal privilege always took precedence over other matter and Tarbox was allowed to proceed.

Tarbox then commenced his speech by quoting from Blaine's speech of Monday in which he stated that he (Tarbox) had informed Frye that the resolution offered by him was not aimed at him, Blaine, but that he (Blaine) had regarded the assurance with some degree of incredulity. He gave a full history of the passage of the famous Tarbox resolution. He intimated Blaine had violated confidence by revealing certain private conversations. Tarbox had heard of Caldwell as a celebrity of doubtful fame in New England business circles, and that he was conveniently beyond the seas, but when his resolution was offered he had no hint that Blaine was connected with him in any way. Blaine regards the whole thing as political persecution. The gentleman (Blaine) seemed to have been suspected in U. P. transactions not only by personal and political enemies, but by personal and political intimates, who knew him best. Harrison, a government director and political sympathizer with the gentleman from Maine had thought it. Rollins treasurer of the U. P. R. R. Co. thought it and had thrown himself gallantly into the breach to defend the gentleman, even at the risk of what was more valuable than life his own honor. Fisher had thought it, the intimate friend for a lifetime of the gentleman from Maine. Tarbox resumed his seat and apparently to the disappointment of his audience, who seemed to have expected something of a more exciting character.

After Frye had spoken on the subject of Tarbox having surreptitiously got hold of Blaine's speech, Tarbox said, I do not know what he charges me with. I do not understand what he intimates. I suppose it is that by some improper method I obtained possession of the speech which the gentleman from Maine (Blaine) intended to deliver as his best counsel to his countrymen on a subject affecting deeply the public welfare, and that I made some improper use of that paper. I only have to reply that what he states is utterly untrue. [Applause on the Democratic side and laughter on the Republican side.] While the speaker pro tem was admonishing the House and gallery for this violation of order, Blaine called over to Frye, in an undertone, "Frye, ask him if he denies that he had a copy of it." Tarbox, just as the speaker pro tempore had announced that this was a deliberative body, broke out with a remark in answer to something else but applying to what the speaker had said, "No, by no means." The aptness of the remark was greeted with a roar of laughter on the floor and the galleries, while the gavel of the speaker kept up a continuous hammering which only added to the uproar. After order was restored Tarbox disclaimed charging Frye with any intentional untruth. He supposed that that gentleman had spoken from rumor, or perhaps out of suspicious temper, or perhaps out of some irritation.

Frye, contemptuously—Irritation! At what! [Laughter.]

Tarbox—(After a pause, which made the Republicans laugh all the more) All the irritation that I can conceive a man to feel in relation to the discussion of the question is that by certain circumstances a deliverance on a public question that was made for personal purposes, and not from patriotic consideration for the public good, which contained within it that which was calculated, if spoken by a statesman, to mislead his countrymen, was not permitted to go forth to the country without a certainty of its misstatements having been refuted on the spot. (Contemptuous laughter on the Republican side.)

Frye—I desire to ask the gentleman, as he says that what I said was untrue, whether he did have a copy of that speech in his desk at the time it was being delivered?

Tarbox (after another pause, which the Republicans again marked with laughter) The gentleman must not make a charge and then cross examine (Interruption by Garfield)—The culprit.

Tarbox continuing—The man whom he charges with offense in order to find out whether it is true or not.

Frye—We will have it then. I have nothing further to ask, gentlemen.

Blaine—I never supposed occasion would arise when I should desire or be induced to state that transaction to the House. Before I left my home last autumn to resume my duties here, I did, as many gentlemen have done, prepare a speech on the absorbing public question of currency. It was printed at a newspaper office with which I was for many years connected. It was marked with words "In confidence" on the top of the copy. It was confided to the associated press, with the intimation that whoever found himself in possession of a copy of it before its publication was in possession of it wrongfully. Various circumstances postponed the delivery of the speech from the month of December, when I had expected to deliver it until the 10th of February. Meanwhile, five or six weeks before I did deliver it, I ascertained that the gentleman from Massachusetts (Tarbox) had a copy of it in his possession, and that he had offered it for publication to some newspaper man. How it came into his possession I do not know. I never have been able to know, I have only surmised. I assert that it was there; that it was in his possession for weeks, and that his holding it was a violation of the primal laws of honesty, as much as though he had my watch; just the same. I have never recognized the gentleman since. I only recognize him to-day to make that statement. I will now take up the motion to reconsider the vote on the resolution for introducing certain evidence.

Tarbox rose, and the Speaker pro tem asked Blaine whether he yielded the floor to Tarbox.

Blaine, with an air of haughtiness—I will hear what he has to say.

Tarbox—I understand the gentleman from Maine to intimate that I offered a printed speech purporting to be his to some newspaper.

Blaine—I had heard it.

Tarbox—It is not true.

Blaine—The gentleman stated a while ago that it was not true that he had a copy of it.

Tarbox—I made no such statement.

Blaine—I now call up the motion to reconsider the vote ordering certain testimony to be printed.

Lord claimed the right of going on with the Geneva award bill.

In the course of the parliamentary conflict on the point, Blaine stated all he wanted was to have the Caldwell dispatch in the committee's proceedings of yesterday printed. At the same time Reagan made the objection that the Caldwell dispatch was no kind of evidence.

Blaine—And yet you reported a vote of censure on Schenck on the same kind of evidence.

Springer—That is not the case, the committee on foreign affairs did receive certain telegrams from London with respect to his connection with the Emma mine; but in every instance before use was made of them they were submitted to Schenck for his statement in regard to them.

Blaine—(with a tremendous home thrust)—Why did you not submit this dispatch to me? (Triumphant applause on the Republican side.)

Mr. Springer—I presume it will be submitted to the gentleman in good time.

Blaine persisted in holding the floor, notwithstanding the Speaker's hammering and demand for order.

Blaine—One moment Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker pro tem.—No, sir, the gentleman will be seated. The chair must come to the point of order in furtherance of public business. The decision of the chair is that the gentleman from Maine can not call up his motion to reconsider while the Geneva award bill is before the House.

Blaine—Then I understand the chair to rule that I have lost my control over the motion.

Speaker pro tem.—No, sir; the chair has ruled no such thing. The chair will recognize the gentleman when there is nothing properly pending before the House.

Blaine—I desire permission to say—

Speaker pro tem., interrupting—Does the gentleman take appeal?

Blaine—I merely want to say that in submitting to it as I do peacefully, I do not at all concur in it.

Speaker—The chair did not suppose anything of the kind. [Laughter at the expense of Blaine.]

The House then resumed the consideration of the Geneva award bill and was addressed by McCreary. The House then took a recess till 7:30 P. M.

The evening session was an utter failure, only two members being present. Adjourned.

BLAINE INVESTIGATION.

WASHINGTON, June 6.

Blaine made a speech, saying that the Luttrell resolution lay dead and dormant for nine days, until the Tarbox resolution passed. He asked Mr Frye, upon the passage of the Tarbox resolution, to ask Knott to put Northern Democrats and not Southern rebels on the sub-committee. "I want Mr. Knott," he cried, with dramatic flourish, "to tell me why, if that Luttrell resolution was so important, nothing was done with it for three months." Here Blaine raised his voice and demanded peremptorily of Hunton whether he would now inform him, as he promised to do in the House whether he knew of the reception of that cable dispatch from Caldwell by Knott.

Knott replied that he was far too busy to do anything about matters under the Luttrell resolution during these three months. Knott was then closely cross examined by Blaine on the subject of the cable dispatch.

"I want to know, Blaine shouted, whether you intend to produce that dispatch before the House.

Knott—I never had any other intention than to produce it before the judiciary committee.

Blaine—During these five days that you had it have you not denied to newspaper men that you had it?

Knott protested against being interrupted, and went on to make about the same explanation he made before. He never sent a cable dispatch in his life and did not know the company kept the address of the sender and he thought he had no means of testing the genuineness of the dispatch by telegraphing back to Caldwell. Knott went on to say he informed Lord, Jencks and Lynde of it, and that was the reason of his not giving it to the press. Why, if the dispatch had said Blaine got the bonds he would not have given it to the press before verifying Blaine.

Blaine coolly intimated he thought he would.

Knott, walking up menacingly to Blaine, What do you mean to insinuate that I should do you that injustice?

Blaine said, Yes, yes, you would not have kept back long any testimony damaging my character.

Knott went on to explain when Blaine interrupted saying, "I knew that in the case of the Chesebrough dispatch."

Hunton reproved Blaine, and said that he must not interrupt.

Knott protested that he intended to lay the dispatch before the committee.

Blaine—When?

Knott—I did not fix any time.

Blaine—Was it not suppression not to give it to the press?

The witness Knott defended himself as well as he could.

Blaine—Well you are a lawyer—I suppose you must be as you are the chairman of the judiciary committee—if you received a dispatch from Caldwell, what is the presumption, that it came from Caldwell, or that it did not? [Laughter.]

Knott—That depends on circumstances.

Blaine then cross examined Knott on the manner in which the judiciary committee intended to deal with the dispatch, and on the time when they intended to publish it.

Knott declared that he proposed to do business in his own way.

Blaine—You say the cable dispatch was no evidence. Will the affidavit that Caldwell proposed to send be no evidence?

Knott—An ex parte affidavit taken in London would not be.

The scramble continued and Blaine, waxing wroth, wanted to know, in a voice trembling with rage whether Knott meant to insinuate he had been in communication with Caldwell to make him send the dispatch. Here a personal encounter was impending but Knott disavowed such an insinuation.

Blaine—Because I have heard that you have been rummaging the telegraph office to find a dispatch from me to Caldwell.

Knott, furiously—Then you have heard a de[illegible]

Blaine. Well, I want the country to know that for all these days Lord, McMahon, Jencks and Lynde knew of this dispatch and never gave it to the world.

The scene was very exciting, and it was generally expected that Blaine and Knott would come to fisticuffs, but Tucker, Hunton and Lynde interrupted them with long statements, during which the combatants had time to cool down.

Blaine then returned to the charge, saying that Knott had never done anything to ascertain whether the dispatch was genuine or not.

Knott—That is not true.

Lynde—If that dispatch was spurious it would be no use to telegraph back to London.

Blaine—Every American registers at the cable office, and if you had telegraphed back to inquire whether the sender was Caldwell, or not you could have obtained the whole police force in London to look up this matter in six hours.

The language of Blaine and of the whole judiciary committee went on in the same strain until the committee adjourned.

Blaine requested correspondents to send this examination of committee in full. "Let's have that out," he exclaimed jubilantly.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The sub judiciary committee to-day continued the investigation into the charges against Blaine. J. A. Greene resumed his testimony, saying that the entire history of the K. P. R. R. was a matter of record in the supreme court in Washington. Witness said that T. C. Durant and his associates received about $18,900,000 worth of bonds of different kinds for constructing the road. About $9,000,000 were left to the road, of which records show that about $1,000,000 were used for lobby purposes, although the word lobby does not appear on record. The records show Mr Blaine received $250,000 of the construction bonds placed in the hands of J. B. Stewart by Thos. Durant. Witness said the name of James Blaine appeared in the corrected record, but not that of James G. Blaine. Witness continuing, said if the passage of the 10th section of the act of Congress, of July 2, 1864, was brought about by Stewart, as he claimed, it brought $5,670,000 to the road, and on the principle of honor among thieves, the road ought to have paid Stewart's claim. But they refused it on the ground that the claim was for lobby purposes, and was therefore immoral, and that is how the witness' attention was called to the name of Blaine.

By Lawrence—Have you any knowledge of yourself that Jas. G. Blaine had any connection with the road? Witness—No, sir; not of my own knowledge. The matter was talked about a good deal during the trial.

By Hunton—State anything of your knowledge or that you have derived from others, of these persons. If they are within the United States.

Witness—The claim was resisted on account of the immorality of it, and I told Stewart I was afraid of it. I did not like the looks of Congressman Blaine in connection with it. Stewart said the most of the amount went for attorneys' fees. He didn't say Blaine was in it, or that he was not in it. The conversation took place while Blaine was in Congress. Witness had no distinct recollection that Stewart ever specially said to him that Blaine was in it. He never explained why one of the papers referred to Blaine and the other to Jas. Blaine. Stewart always spoke of the persons as Hon. Mr Blaine, and "Jas. Blaine." Witness always spoke of him as "Congressman Blaine" or "Speaker Blaine," after he was made speaker. Recess.

The sub judiciary committee reassembled this afternoon, when Greene, resumed his testimony, giving the details of the disposition of certain Kansas Pacific bonds for Thomas B. Stewart, whose published statement, he said, was grossly erroneous.

Blaine asked the witness whether his long connection with the Kansas Pacific railroad suits did not give him full knowledge of all the transactions of the Company. Witness replied it did; but that it would occupy many days in giving all the particulars; and in response to another question, witness said he had been summoned to testify as to the Credit Mobilier of the Kansas Pacific railroad in transactions of which the name of Jas. G. Blaine did not appear. Witness showed from the records that George Francis Train and wife obtained $400,000 worth of bonds for services rendered by him in lobbying. About one million dollars' worth of bonds went into the hands of other persons for services of the same kind. Such lobbying was a swindle upon the government. The committee adjourned until to-morrow.

Threatening War Rumor Denied.

A correspondent at Paris telegraphs the contents of the note which appears in the evening papers. He says he thinks it comes from an official source. The note, after denying that there is any foundation for the various alarming reports, says the truth is that the peace of Europe was never less threatened than now. There is not a trace of any disagreement between Germany and Russia and the situation of the latter toward England improves daily.

Russian Forces Reported Concentrating.

LONDON, June 8.—Numerous Slavonic journals assert that a strong Russian force is being concentrated at Bender river, Bessarabia, near Moldavia on the Turkish frontier. The Prince of Montenegro has forbidden the transmission of telegrams or letters giving information of military movements.

The Herzegovinians under control of the Prince of Montenegro have determined to accept no communication from the Porte.

Russian Aid for the Insurgents.

The Slavonic committee at Moscow have sent the insurgents 100,000 roubles. The same dispatch says it appears that on June 1st, rival propositions touching the settlement of the eastern question were received at Vienna, England and Russia. Similar communications were probably made by both powers to Berlin, prior to Emperor William's postponing his contemplated trip to Ems. News has just been received that the Austrian government has given permission for 600 breech loaders and several million cartridges to be landed at Cattaro for the Montenegrins. The Turks have consequently stopped the Austrian steamers from landing in the Turkish bank of the Danube.

Indian Found Dead.

The Indian Tecumseh, one of the party taken East by Meacham and Applegate, was found drowned in Big Spring between the reservation and Linkville, with gashes on his head, forehead and on the side of his face, and appearances indicated that he had been thrown from his horse and that he crawled up to the spring and fell in. The Indians, however suspected McKay and arrested him on suspicion of murdering Tecumseh. The body has been taken to Fort Klamath for the physician to examine the wounds for the purpose of ascertaining if they resulted from accident or violence.

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

Chicago Times on Blaine.

CHICAGO, June 7.—On the subject of the recent developments in the Blaine investigation, the Times says editorially: The atmosphere around Blaine in Washington is so thoroughly impregnated with the magnetism of his apparently audacious defiance of public opinion in the production of the Mulligan letters that nothing like a calm judgment upon the effect of these letters can be reasonably expected in that quarter. The noisy crowd of retainers about him, stimulated by a lively hunger for the good things he alone would have the will, if he had the ability, to provide for them, fill all ears with their rejoicings at the victory he achieved over the Confederates by his sudden change of tactics on Monday. But there are other Republican circles, it seems, wherein the letters are criticised and the questionable nature of the ex-Speaker's traffic with Fisher is fully recognized. Among the supporters of Conkling, Morton, Hayes and other Presidential possibilities there is every disposition to magnify the proportions of Blaine's dubious business transactions. They will allow his fierce attack on the Confederates to have its full effect on public opinion, for in turning upon Hunton and Knott, he was fighting the battle of the party, but when the smoke of this conflict clears away, they will not be slow to point out to the country how horribly their champion has been damaged in the fray, and how poorly he is fitted to lead the party in the Fall campaign. These are considerations that will have weight in the Cincinnati crowd, too, for the probability of close voting in several of the States which constitutes the balance of power, makes it most important that the standard bearer of republicanism shall have no record that invites attack. As between Blaine and the Confederates in the House, the Republicans rejoice in Blaine's victory of course, but as between Blaine and the less vulnerable candidates in the party, there will be no lack of a disposition to keenly scan all the weak points in the former's armor.

The Inter-Ocean

After depicting the dramatic scene in the House, says, editorially: In Blaine's impetuous assault upon his enemies, there was the art of the orator, the ingenuity of the trained politician, but above all, the conviction was irresistibly enforced upon the excited audience, that before them stood an honest man penetrated through and through with an intense sense of outrage, fired to a white heat by indignation and roused to that sublime attitude whence a brave man beset by assassins, hurls destruction at his foes. The spirit of revenge and hate which has inspired this attack on the ex-Speaker, is severely commented on as a confederate scheme to destroy a man who thwarted the rebel schemes." The article concludes: "This is the secret of the investigation which has resulted in nothing against Blaine. It was an inquisition upon a Union man by ex confederates. It was inspired by disloyalty and prosecuted by all the arts of duplicity. It has, however, served this purpose to show to the people that the Democratic party is controlled absolutely by three score of ex-Confederates. The investigation is dead. It is a wreck, encumbered by its own slain.

The Tribune

Expresses admiration of the audacity of the man, who in spite of advice of eminent lawyers submitted to the public letters which he knew must show him to have been engaged in stock jobbing of all kinds involved in the credit mobilier transaction, etc. It declares there are thousands of men now dazzled by the boldness and audacity of Blaine, who will rally about him and wage a strong battle in his behalf and follow him to a magnificent defeat. Were the election to be held this week, Mr. Blaine's brilliant strategy and highly melodramatic action might come pretty near winning. It's first dazzling effect might not pass away in time for the admiring spectators to recover their cooler judgment and look behind the scene. The despair of the situation, however, both for Mr. Blaine and his friends, is that there are yet five long months before the election. In politics, as in diplomacy, weeks and months bring about great changes. Five months is long enough time for popular enthusiasm to cool down and abate and for the popular judgment to grow exacting. In that time these letters and others that may come to light will be discussed and criticised. They present many vulnerable points which will be exposed by the Democratic papers and slumberers, and there will be no Blaines to reply with an overwhelming and momentary display of nerve and audacity.

The Journal

Considers Mr. Blaine's vindication of himself and his course complete and triumphant, worthy of the man who has for years been a representative Republican, and while it declares the Journal is neither for Blaine, nor for any other Republican as Presidential nominee at present, it vindicates Mr. Blaine from the aspersions which his relentless enemies cast upon him, and declares that he would be as worthy a representative and as honest a candidate as the ranks of the Republican party contain.

The Cincinnati Commercial

Says the reputation of Blaine as a strong, bold man remains, but it is not to be supposed that the Republican party will, by making him its Presidential candidate, place itself on the defensive during the approaching campaign. Regarding his dealings in railroad stocks from the inside position that he commanded as a leading member of Congress, the people of the United States may be somewhat demoralized but they are not so far gone that it can be presumed they will elect as President a man who has been on the make in the securities of subsidized companies.

Tribune's Editorial on Mr. Blaine's Vindication.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Mr. Proctor Knott came very near making a president of the United States yesterday. Knott advanced threateningly upon Blaine as if to strike him; but finally thought better of it and withheld the blow. He might have given Blaine, what investigators have hitherto failed to do "a black eye." What it has given him is the Cincinnati Convention, and enough votes to make him president. It is the first instance on record in this Congress where a prominent Democrat fairly embraced the opportunity to make a mistake.

In another article the Tribune says: Whatever may be said or thought of Blaine's explanation and the position in which they placed him before the country, there can be but one opinion regarding the earnestness of the people who are opposing him. They do not want him to be president and they don't want him to be nominated at Cincinnati. The attack which they began some weeks ago is beginning to have the appearance of vindictiveness. The suspicion is aroused that they mean to destroy him anyway, no matter whether he is successfully vindicated or not. They have not accepted any statement he has made as true, nor withdrawn any charge against him, though proven out of the mouths of any number of witnesses and by any amount of documentary evidence to be unfounded and false. As the matter now stands those persons who were so confident of blowing Blaine sky high on his record have failed.

The Tribune's

Washington special says: The scene in the House judiciary committee this morning was without parallel in the history of investigations. The judiciary committee has had Blaine under investigation for some weeks. Blaine this morning took the investigation out of the hands of the committee and arraigned the committee on a charge of unfairness and deliberate suppression of information claimed to be favorable to him. Blaine forced the consideration of the circumstances connected with the suppressed telegram from Caldwell, and compelled the committeemen to make important disclosures as to the methods of this suppression. Blaine has again demonstrated that he is most skillful and successful exponent of the policy of audacity. Blaine's marvelous audacity startles the confederate sub committee as much as his speech of Monday did the House. The very exciting colloquy which followed is without precedent in recent parliamentary investigations. There threatened at one time to be a personal encounter in the committee room. Proctor Knott surrendered his dignity to his passion. He had been thirtily exasperated by the assaults of Blaine upon him in the House on Monday. This exasperation was increased by the fact that Blaine, to his face, in the committee room raised an issue of veracity, and charged Knott with suppressing Caldwell's dispatch. Knott became greatly excited; his white mustache grew a shade paler, his fiery cheeks took on a deeper glow; he clutched his oaken stick with a firmer grasp and advanced threateningly toward Blaine, who sat in a chair three feet from him, watching every movement with unflinching eye. The friends of Blaine unconsciously gathered around him, and had Chairman Knott, in his heated chivalry, made another step toward Blaine there would have been a personal encounter. Hunton, who is a man of remarkable composure, succeeded in enforcing quiet. Leading Democrats to-night denounce Knott for not having presented Caldwell's dispatch immediately upon its receipt. Knott yielding to the solicitation of his Democratic friends has given out the famous dispatch to-night to the general public. In so doing he considers he has not given the dispatch validity as evidence, and at the same time has satisfied the public clamor as to its contents. It is understood that the committee have called upon Caldwell for the affidavit, which he offers to send.

World's Editorial.

The battle over Blaine was transferred from the floor of the House yesterday to the room of the judiciary sub committee. The ex-speaker met with some success in renewing his charges against Knott for withholding the dispatch from Caldwell. The dispatch was not important, but the appearance of prejudice which Blaine had contrived to fasten on the chairman of the committee has been a great feather in his cap. In his attempt to show that the sub committee was appointed to investigate him and a test out of a spirit of enmity on account of his course in the amnesty debate, he failed altogether in the committee as in the House. Blaine relied rather on cheek than on argument. He probably understands his party. The World's Washington special says: Blaine's labors to provoke discord were transferred again to the judiciary committee room to-day. A good many left the committee room with the notion that Blaine deserved to be struck; for he attempted to ride, and did in a measure, rough shod over the committee. He abused all his rights before the committee, and insulted Knott in every parliamentary way he could think of, and in some ways that were not so parliamentary. It was another audacious game of bluff with the evident intent to force the committee to make a martyr out of Blaine. The committee declined the job however, and Blaine's crumb of comfort is that he has given another proof of his ability to break with impunity every known parliamentary rule and every tradition of legislative decency and decorum. On the floor of the House Blaine tried to raise another breeze, and the result was a failure. Tarbox rose to a question of privilege and began to answer to Blaine's insinuations on Monday that Tarbox had been insincere in his statement to Frye that his resolution was not aimed at Blaine specifically. Some one called Tarbox's attention to the fact that Blaine was not present, and Tarbox deferred his remarks. Later, while Knott had the floor on the Geneva award, Blaine came in and tried to bully Tarbox into making his explanation then and there. As usual, he paid no attention to the speaker's gavel, and had to be sharply called to order by Blackburn, who was in the chair; but he failed to bully Tarbox, who told him that he chose to select his own time to make his statement, and so the matter ended for the time and what promised to be another excitement. To-morrow morning, immediately after the morning hour, Tarbox proposes to state simply what he did say to Frye and to bring out the additional fact that its introduction was postponed at Frye's special request; that Frye one day came and asked for the resolution and took it off and examined it and then withdrew his objection to its immediate presentation, and that at the first examination by committee under the resolution raised the point that its scope included nothing, but the investigation of the 75 bonds which went into the possession of the Union Pacific road. It is probable that Tarbox will draw some sharp inferences. A warm debate is likely to follow. There has been some talk to-day that Blaine has decided to attend the convention as one of the delegates from Maine, and make a speech in defense of himself, but it is not conceded by any of his friends.

The World has a long editorial which may be summarized by the following extract: We repeat that the whole chapter of Pacific railroad legislation is the most disgraceful in the history of Congress. At the head of the men who fastened upon the government this series of iniquitous acts, we find Blaine. His correspondence with Fisher shows that he was the leading spirit in Congress, and still has vast power; that as speaker he made decisions for the purpose of aiding jobbers like Caldwell; that he called attention to those decisions on occasions for pecuniary advantage, and that they did have that advantage. How can such a man expect to be a candidate for the Presidency?

The Times on Blaine.

Speaking of the Blaine affair the Times Washington correspondent says: He put the members severally on the stand, one after another, and without the formality of administering an oath, he put them through a sharp and rigid cross examination. Members of the committee certainly appeared very badly as Harney, about whose peculiar manner and queer replies the Democratic press made so much ado, was a jewel of a witness compared with Knott. The scene in the committee room during the progress of the Blaine examination combined some elements ridiculous, audacious and humiliating. The committee was absolutely put to rout. They were so much frightened as to think they were really hurt, and Blaine was complete master of the situation. Knott was particularly berated and annoyed until that little goat was in a perfect fury, and appeared, to some people in the committee room, almost on the point of striking his tormentor with his cane. This was an action which Blaine would probably have given all the Little Rock and Fort Smith bonds remaining in his possession to have brought about, but the chairman of the sub-committee (Hunton) managed to adjourn the investigation and to draw his sheltered friend out of the conflict before any heads were broken. It seems that the idea that a member of the House should come into a committee room and virtually break off the examination of witnesses, and himself take charge of the matter in hand and put the members of the committee on the stand, was almost more audacious than the production of the Fisher letters, and was equally ludicrous by reason of the pitiable weakness of the committee, that had neither the sense nor the moral stamina to protect themselves from the assault. The committee were placed in this uncomfortable situation by Proctor Knott. The concealment of Caldwell's telegram was Blaine's opportunity, and he has made the most of it. To-morrow they will undertake to go on with the examination of Greene with respect to the Kansas Pacific Railroad bonds; but in their present weak condition it is impossible to state anything confidently with respect to their proceedings twelve hours hence.

Times editorial: The sober second thought of the Republican party is now heard in regard to Blaine's letters and his defiant efforts at self vindication, and the results can hardly be [illegible] to the moral enthusiasts of that gentleman's admirers. There is such a dead-lock of mediocrity now-a-days in the proceedings of the House that the audacious spirit of self-[illegible] which tramples on the rules of the House and carries its point by sheer force of audacious energy, at the moment commands respect. But the excitement over and the smoke of battle cleared away, leading Republican journals of all shades, and the quite intelligent people who make up the bulk of the party, have re-read those letters, and have thought again about that Caldwell dispatch, and are unable to profess themselves satisfied. The Times thinks the letters show no positive proof of corruption; nothing at which the average business mind would revolt as dishonorable; but the general verdict is that doubtful negative qualities are not the recommendation for the Presidency, and that the leader under whom the party proposes to fight should be made of different stuff and in a different mold from the model of himself prepared by Blaine's own hand.

A PRESSING NEED OF THE STATE OF OREGON.

PORTLAND, June 1, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

Will you allow me the use of your columns to call public attention to what I consider a matter of paramount importance in the development of the resources of our State. From my avocation, I am almost a daily witness of the great need the people at large have for some guide to direct them in their search after the mineral wealth that is hidden beneath the surface of the earth. We all know a little about the riches that are concealed there from the indications that have been from time to time stumbled upon, as it were, by accident; but no idea can be as yet formed of the true mineral resources of the State, because there has been as yet no systematic investigation into the matter. I am frequently consulted by people who have [illegible] expending their time and money in search of the precious and other metals, of coal, of cement, and of various other things in the bowels of the earth in the most unpromising localities. Not only is time and money thrown away in the search for these things where they are not, but who can tell the still greater loss the State sustains by not searching for treasures where they may be found. Almost all the States have had geological surveys set on foot and have experienced the benefit of it. States neither older nor more wealthy than ours have had the surface mapped out and explanatory volumes written, showing where and how all kinds of mining may be successfully prosecuted. Take the single article of coal oil and see the fortunes that have been wasted in digging for it where there was no more chance of finding it than there was of finding diamonds. Ignorant people depreciate and always have depreciated the advantages of scientific investigations, and there is no doubt too much of this kind of thing in our own State at this time. I am not in want of an office, and therefore do not flatter. What I want is that the people should open their eyes to their true interests. To be sure we have had a State geologist for the last three or four years, and doubtless a competent one, but what, under the niggardly allowance doled out to him, was he enabled to do? Positively nothing. A thousand dollars a year for duties that required continued traveling and an efficient corps of assistants! The thing is absolutely ridiculous. What I would suggest is that the Legislature, at its next meeting, should appoint a board for the geological survey of the State, of say one competent geologist with two assistants, at such salary as would command the services of scientific men, not only skilled in geology, mineralogy and paleontology, but also in agricultural chemistry. In this way the foundation of a work may be laid that will endure for all coming time, and bring continually increasing benefits to the State. I doubt not a saving of useless expenditure, in the manner I have described sufficient to defray the expenses of the board, would be thus effected and a permanent benefit ensured that is at present incalculable. I may hereafter say something further on this subject, if you consider it of sufficient importance to spare me space for it in your valuable paper.

FRIDAY MORNING JUNE 9 1876

MR. BLAINE'S CONTEST

There has scarcely ever been witnessed in any deliberative body an exhibition of audacity, skill and energy as brilliant and effective as that which took place the other day in the House of Representatives. No one can but feel that in all he undertook Mr Blaine was perfectly successful. It was impossible even for his bitterest opponents not to be overwhelmed by the impetuosity and momentum of his onset. The day before he seemed to be at the mercy of the sub-committee of the judiciary committee, but on that day he completely turned the tables upon them, triumphed over and literally trampled upon them. Dr Livingstone, who was once seized and severely wounded by a lion, describes the effect upon him of the animal's attack. He says in his book that he was perfectly conscious of being in the lion's power and of his peril, but he could neither make an effort to save himself nor even think of doing so. He lay perfectly limp and passive while the lion stood over him and occasionally shook him as a cat does a mouse. Something of this sort of paralysis of will seems to have possessed Mr Blaine's enemies in the House. Any one of them might have at any time, by raising a point of order, silenced Mr Blaine and forced him to take his seat, for he had no right whatever to the floor of the House for that purpose at that time. But no one of them thought of doing so, or if he did, dared to do it. The man, thoroughly aroused and indignant, seemed to fill his opponents with such consternation and dread that none dared to stand in his way.

In the committee room next day, Mr Blaine was even more daring and aggressive. He simply took possession of the committee, stopped the regular business, set aside the examination of the witnesses, and putting the members of the committee themselves upon the stand, examined and cross examined them at his will. The way in which he demolished Mr Knott will never be forgotten. That gentleman will be remembered no longer as the chief jurist of Jay Cooke's city by the lake, but as the victim of Mr Blaine's merciless wrath. Whether Mr Knott intended to suppress the Caldwell telegram, as Mr Blaine bluntly told him he believed he did, or desired to make it public as soon as he had satisfied himself of its genuineness, he made a blunder, which is said to be worse than a crime in politics, and has been fearfully punished for it. Indeed, if Mr Knott had desired to play into the hands of Mr Blaine, he could hardly have given him a better opportunity for rendering himself popular than he has unintentionally done. With that talent for availing himself of the mistakes of his adversaries, Mr Blaine saw his chance and took instant and enormous advantage of it.

It has already been said by the friends of Mr Blaine's rivals for the nomination at Cincinnati that he has injured himself by his fiery audacity; but this can hardly be so. The American people have a natural admiration for pluck, and if it shall not appear that Mr Blaine is guilty of questionable participation in speculations in bonds, or something else, his ardor in vindicating his character and protecting himself will be far from doing him any injury. That he has been bold and impetuous in this contest, is no proof that he is incapable of being prudent and judicious in other and different situations.

THE LAST LEGISLATURE

While it is quite true that the last legislature did not contain a majority of members who were elected on the Democratic ticket, there are still some facts which we think are sufficient to justify our statement that the Democrats had the majority of that body. They are these: Upon the organization of the legislature of 1874 the Democrats elected their candidates for President of the Senate and Speaker of the House, which they could have scarcely done if they had been in the minority. The Democrats also carried most of the measures advocated by them. In the canvass just concluded the Democrats defended the action of the last legislature from the assaults of the Republicans. And it is conceded by all that had there been a United States Senator to elect by the last legislature, he would have been a Democrat. We do not think it fair to say the Democrats were responsible for all the acts of the last legislature, and therefore do not, but unless we are greatly mistaken the public does.

The plain fact is that the Independents elected to the last legislature voted on party questions pretty much, if not altogether, according to their ancient party affiliations, and there were more old Democrats than old Republicans among the Independents. The former added to the straight Democrats outnumbered the latter added to the straight Republicans, and the legislature was practically Democratic.

Without expressing any opinion upon the merits of the vexed Chinese question, we think it not amiss to commend the firm and prudent action of the Nevada Sheriff Swift, who by his timely precaution prevented a conflict which necessarily would have been bloody. The manner of settling the Chinese question proposed by some of the Anti Coolie clubs would be, if adopted and carried out, a lasting disgrace to the people of this coast. Violence and the disregard of law impede rather than aid the establishment of right. The Chinese have no very ardent supporters in this country—they are not voters—and if it can be shown that their presence here is injurious to the country, means will be found to restrict them from coming, without resorting to acts of cruelty and violence.

LETTER FROM DALLAS

DALLAS, June , 1876

The official vote of this county shows that the Independents carried the principal candidates for county offices and besides the State Senator and Representative, the Democrats carrying two Representatives. Hayden, Democrat for State Senator, is badly beaten. This is regarded as the most important victory of the campaign. Mr Bentley, the Senator elect, is a man of excellent ability and sterling integrity. The Representatives elected are all good men. Mr Stump is a brother of Hon David Stump, who served in the last session, and a very superior man.

There were no Independent candidates for judge, district attorney and joint Senator with Benton county. The Independents generally voted for Boise, Republican, for judge, carrying him by an unanimous majority. He has a good majority in the district despite the efforts of those straightout Republicans who opposed him because of his formerly being in the Independent movement.

Holman, Rep, for joint senator with Benton county, an excellent man, is probably elected. He carried this county by 18 majority, and his opponent, from the best information that I can get, can not make up this difference in Benton. H

ELECTION RETURNS.

Lake

YREKA, June 8.—The mail carrier from Linkville reports the election very close in Lake county, Oregon. Applegate, Republican, has a good prospect of being elected to the legislature, having run ahead of his ticket as far as heard from. Mason, Republican, for county judge, is considerably ahead so far and is probably elected. The Republican candidate for sheriff is also supposed to be elected. The balance of the county officers will probably be gained by the Democrats.

Linn.

ALBANY, June 8.—News from Brush Creek states that the Democrats have carried that precinct by majorities ranging from 5 to 10. No figures are given on any of the candidates except treasurer. Grigsby, the Democratic candidate, gets away with the precinct to the tune of 12 majority, and beats his competitor in that county for treasurer that number of votes. The vote of the several precincts will be canvassed by the county clerk to-morrow or the day following.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation and suitable for grain or vegetables.

940 Acres four miles southeast of Salem on the railroad, with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with fine springs, consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim, on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground claimed by Mr Alfred Stanton of Salem.

4,700 Acres of prairie and light brush land, with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette River for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river, commencing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $1 to $[illegible] per acre. This land will all be immediately resurveyed and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons or colony of persons desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette Valley, near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages, as well as most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages on more favorable terms than they can ever expect to realize again.

DAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1876

CITY.

Lure.—This morning at 3 o'clock Stephens will sail hence with a full freight and the passengers: J E Henkle, J Michel, J. Molenberg, W F. Stevens, H Harris, J. Molenberg, Miss Mary Robinson, Mrs. C W. Miss M Douglass Mrs Drake and Mrs. P. P Bodly, Mrs Moody, E J Col. D. Evans, Col. Rucker & family, Frank Kirkel, Frank Beardsley, S. Harris, J. Simon, C R Polly, Rodney, Lydia Rodney, Mrs Lewis, C. M. Wood, wife and child, N. J. K Mercer, M C. George, Miss Charles James, wife and child, wife and five children Master A. H. Small and wife, Miss Ganten, Dr Douglas and three children, Mr. R E Williams, Dr B Knickerbocker, Mrs. J. Williams, G. M. Al-, Mrs. H. Mummey, Kin Sath, A. M. Howe, T. W. Pittenger, W Wells, Fargo & Co's messenger age.

D. D. CONFERRED.—Speaking of the conferment of the degree of D D Rev. R. Bentley, pastor of the Taylor M. Church, the Advocate says: "During the commencement exercises of the Willamette University the trustees of that institution conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity on Rev. Robert Bentley, B. D., of this city. Dr. Bentley is a graduate of Northwestern University in the class of 1862, receiving there the degree of A. B. Three years after he was graduated, and received the degree of A M from the university he entered the Theological Seminary where after years' faithful application he completed the course of study prescribed, and had conferred upon him the degree of Bachelor of Divinity. After twelve years' labor in the ministry, he has been fitly honored by the Willamette University with the degree of D. D.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE?—Mr. Perry Davis the has handed us the following note, which we publish for the purpose of calling the attention of property owners to an matter: "What will be done with streets if the river continues to rise? It might be well to give it a thought in time and try to devise some plan to prevent them from floating. As all Nicolson pavement and planking will float as soon as it is covered with six inches of water, could not railroad iron be had and placed in two rows along the streets, or heavy chains, rock, stones, bags or barrels filled with sand. Such timely precautions might save many dollars to the owners. It is my opinion that something of the kind will have to be done and it is now time to give the subject thought."

A MISTAKE.—The impression seems to prevail that some mistake was made by the clerks of precinct in counting the votes, as when the returns were canvassed by the county clerk, assisted by justices of the peace Levi Anderson and C. S. Clark, a clerical error was detected and rectified. Such an impression is entirely incorrect. It is true that the official vote returned from precinct differed materially from that which has been published, but the latter was obtained from as authentic sources as was possible. The inference is that the difference was the result of errors committed on the part of the RISING.—Dispatches from up the river indicate that the water and Umatilla. Since river has risen 2 inches at Celilo, and 6 inches at the Cascades. At Umatilla the river lacks but one inch of being as high as during the summer of 1871. The telegraph from Wallula states that the rise is from Snake river, as that is quite high and rising rapidly. If we may hold ourselves in readiness to emigrate towards the suburbs of this city.

THE REGATTA.—It has been decided by the having in charge the Centennial to charge an entrance fee of $5 the proceeds to be given to the prize money, as follows: First cup; second prize, four-tenths money; third prize, three tenths; two-tenths; and the fifth prize, the entrance money. It is estimated boats will enter, making the amount to $50.

SABBATH CONCERT.—Next Sabbath evening will be held the monthly missionary concert in connection with the East Portland M. church. A variety of scriptural exercises designed to instruct and interest; these exercises will be that of the Red Cross. All are cordially invited to attend. An address will be delivered by Mr. Northup.

THE UNION PICNIC.—We call the attention of our readers to the notice of the Union picnic, to take place to-morrow. Ample arrangements have been made for the comfort of all those who may desire to attend. The site selected has been well chosen, and with favorable weather we predict a very pleasant day.

ELECTED.—At the annual business meeting of the Scandinavian Evangelical church, held in the basement in East Portland, June 7, the following persons were duly elected and installed as officers of said church: Iver Havsen, Neills J. Madisen, John Gustavson and MAID OF LIBERTY.—Mr. D. F. Harrington, who has the charge of the Liberty Car at the Centennial celebration in July, requests all the little girls who have handed their names to him, to meet him to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon at 1 o'clock, at Wood's Museum.

PERSONAL.

Hon. M. C. George, State Senator elect from Multnomah county, will leave this morning for the East. He will visit his old home in the Buckeye State, and also the Exposition at Philadelphia before returning. Mr. George will be absent about two months. J. W. Pittenger, Esq., a young attorney, is also a passenger on the departing steamer for the East.

Col. Dudley Evans, the courteous and efficient agent for Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, in this city, will take his departure on the outgoing steamer this morning. Mr. Evans has been granted by the company a two months' leave of absence from his post of duty. During that time he will visit the Centennial, and also his old home in West Virginia. A pleasant, prosperous journey and a safe return.

The following are the boundaries of the municipal divisions of Portland: First ward, north of Washington street; second ward between Washington and Main streets; third ward, south of Main street.

This evening, at 7:30 o'clock, Grand Marshal Zieber and the division marshals will meet at the Clarendon hotel, when a route of march, appointment of divisions, and other important matters will be decided upon.

The M. E. Sunday school of Vancouver, W. T., will hold their centennial picnic or annual reunion in the East Portland Park to-day, 9th inst. The excursion will come off on the popular steamer Vancouver, Capt. Gray, Master.

Mr Tom O'Brien, the cigar dealer, while engaged in arranging some boxes on the shelves yesterday met with a severe fall and received a painful bruise above the eye which will prevent his attending to business for several days.

Miss Maria Lewis and Miss Edith Dillon, in their efforts to raise funds in aid of the improvements being made in connection with the East Portland M. E. church, have met with encouraging success. They raised in cash and subscriptions about $115. The tower of the church is now completed and the painters are at work.

GYMNASTIC TOURNAMENT.

The following rules have been adopted and agreed upon by the "general Centennial committee," to take charge of and conduct the gymnastic tournament, at the Portland Centennial celebration, July 5, 1876:

1. The following apparatus will be used: Horizontal bar, parallel bars, swinging rings and the "horse," and each participant in the contest will be required to make three exercises on the first three—that is to say, on the horizontal bar, parallel bars and swinging rings, two on the horse placed in a lengthwise position, and two on the horse placed in a crosswise position.

2. No exercise will be allowed to be repeated by the same gymnast, should the first effort not succeed or prove a failure.

3. That before an exercise is made the party about to make it shall name the same to the judges.

4. Before the contest begins, lots will be drawn by the contestants to decide the order in which they will follow each other.

5. No person will be allowed to take part in this contest who is not a citizen of the United States, or who has not declared his intention to become such according to law, or who at any time has followed the gymnastic business as a profession.

6. All parties intending to take part in the Centennial gymnastic tournament are required to inform the undersigned judges, through Mr. E. von Schrader, of such intention, in writing, on or before the 3d day of July next.

STAGE OF WATER.

The following brief summary, made up from the daily reports, will indicate the stage of water along the Upper Columbia up to the time of going to press:

Celilo—River fell 2 inches during Friday, at this point water fell 11 inches during Friday and Saturday; river rose 4 inches during Tuesday; from Wednesday to Thursday river rose 2 inches.

Wallula—River fell 3 inches on Friday, water fell 6 inches during Saturday, from Monday morning to evening river rose 3 inches, from Monday evening to Tuesday morning river fell an inch. Tuesday river began to rise rapidly, and by Wednesday evening came up 21 inches within 36 hours; during Thursday river was at a stand.

Cascades—The water rose 3 inches Monday night, and during Tuesday came up 6 inches more. Up to Thursday evening the river has risen 6 inches more.

Umatilla—From Friday evening to Saturday evening the river fell 1 foot, during Monday water rose about 2 inches, Wednesday, river rose considerably, and at that date was 9 inches higher than at any time during the recent rise, water did not rise any during Wednesday night and Thursday. At last accounts water lacks only one inch of being as high as in 1871.

NOTES FROM SALEM.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Our regular correspondent, under date of June 8th, sends the following:

Mrs D. A. Miller of this city, who started East a few weeks since, has arrived safely at her destination in Michigan.

The ladies of the Congregational church are preparing for a choral service at their church to-morrow evening. Miss Emma Miller of Oregon City, and Mrs. Helen M. Stratton of Albany, will be present and favor the audience with some of their choicest selections.

At the annual meeting of Alert Hook and Ladder Co No 1, held in their hall Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, A J Kelly; Secretary, E N Churchill; Treasurer, Chas Uzafovage; Foreman, T B Wait; 1st Assistant, C. O. Scott; 2d Assistant, G Hastings; Board of Fire Delegates, Wm England, E D Sloat and John Holman. Wm J. Cox was nominated for 1st Assistant Chief Engineer Salem fire department.

If you can't go home at noon, take lunch at Barnes'.

Excursions and picnics are the popular idea now and scarcely a week passes but what we hear of one. Scarcely a week passes but what we hear of accessions to the stock of goods at Fishel & Roberts. Prices down as usual.

Mr A. M. Elam, the successor of Elam & Co., engaged in the livery business, corner of I and Fifth streets, East Portland, has completely refitted and refurnished his establishment, and is now prepared to turn out some very stylish rigs. Feed of all kinds constantly on hand.

Peter Wilhelm, at the "Fountain," First and Ash streets, keeps things in a cozy shape. His billiard tables are much admired and the new Virginia table is a great favorite. Call and see him.

W. L. Anvis, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated electric lightning steam baths and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is in the main entirely original, and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. A lady always in the office to assist in treating women.

When you wish to present a respectable appearance dress well. All the young and old men in the town say that the late importations at Jos. Kohn's are the best they have seen. Kohn is always "up to snuff," and provides his patrons with the latest and best. Examine the stock.

BOARD OF DELEGATES.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The report of the department secretary for the past month showing total receipts of $4, was read and adopted.

The same committee reported favorably on the application of John Finnen, for an exempt certificate, and it was ordered issued.

The same committee recommended that an active certificate be granted W. L. B. Dillon, in lieu of one lost. Report adopted.

On motion, the board adjourned.

EUGENE ITEMS.

Our correspondent at Eugene sends the following under date of June 8th:

The bridge at this place with ... feet of lumber for its construction.

Wm. Simpson, of the U. S. Surveyor General's office, is visiting friends in this city.

Only eight "drummers" afflicted the merchants yesterday, and it was a bad day for drummers too.

A band of cattle numbering 200, owned by James Humphrey, started for Eastern Oregon by the military road last Tuesday.

A young man with a decided musical inclination, recently borrowed a violin and forgetting the rights of ownership concluded to perambulate southward. Sheriff Eakin overtook him at Oakland and he now languishes in durance vile, the specie to liquidate his fine not having been forthcoming.

The citizens of Eugene and vicinity have at length concluded to celebrate the day of our national independence at home. The firemen, under whose auspices the celebration will be held, have secured $300 subscription to defray the necessary expenses.

The election last Monday passed off quietly, the absence of liquors being conducive to good order. Considerable scratching was indulged in, and contrary to precedent, Democrats did nearly all of it. Thompson (Dem.) circuit judge, 88 majority; Higby (Rep.) prosecuting attorney, 6 majority. Democrats elect Whiteaker to the Senate, two representatives, county judge, both county commissioners, and the school superintendent. Nearly 2,000 votes were cast, the largest vote ever polled in this county.

DR. MCBRIDE.—What the editor of the Stockton Independent says of Dr. McBride and his World's Relief: "This skillful practitioner, and very popular gentleman has spent the week in this city introducing a medicine which possesses wonderful potency in curing pain. It is called 'World's Relief,' and is properly named, for in every case of physical suffering which has come under Dr. McBride's observation and treatment relief is almost instantaneous. The close, searching keen discrimination requisite in distinguishing and determining the nature and character of the disease and their symptoms, is an indispensable characteristic of the first-class physician, and to Dr. McBride's wonderful diagnostic ability is in the main to be attributed his miraculous success in curing pains, no matter from what cause arising. Such men are benefactors to their race." Dr. McBride may be found at Rooms No. 6 and 7, Cosmopolitan Hotel. He will remain in the city thirty days.

An intemperate printer is a typographical error, and an intemperate man would be an impossibility if Noble Whisky was the only beverage. Drink it at H. Fleckenstein's 147 First street, Portland.

RETURNED.

Dr Wightman has again returned to this city, where he can be found at his rooms northeast corner of Stark and Fourth streets. Remember he makes a specialty of HEMORRHOIDS or PILES and other DISEASES OF THE RECTUM, giving IMMEDIATE RELIEF AND CURING in a very short time, without interfering with the business of the patient. I use no knife, caustic ligature or any other painful remedies. Having treated many cases of twenty and thirty years' standing with entire satisfaction to the parties treated, I have no hesitation in saying SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. Persons at a distance may consult by mail. The process sent by express C. O. D. (not by mail). Consultation fee $2. Post-office box 21, Portland, Oregon.

DR. C. P. WIGHTMAN.

LETTER FROM ST. LOUIS.

IGNORANCE ABOUT OREGON—HARD TIMES—BASE BALL, ETC.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

A few words from an absentee will not come amiss, I hope, nor be excluded "on account of the crowded state of our columns."

A humorous friend of mine says he frequently rouses his traveling enemies, viz: tavern keepers, railway men, or other obnoxious people, to an ecstacy of baffling rage, by talking of what he will do when he gets back to America. He says the average Southerner or Westerner fairly fumes under this kind of attack, yet does not know how to resent it. I find myself in some such small impotency of temper when asked questions concerning our northwestern people and climate that would only apply to Greenlanders. To a large, and not unintelligent portion of America, Oregon remains practically a foreign country, whose chief places are Astoria and Oregon City, chief products skins and furs, chief inhabitants, Indians, and our own Portland is cosily located on the Pacific ocean!

Yet the visitor of "the States" soon finds an excuse for this ignorance, when he sees the enormous, almost nightmarish development of territory and population hereabouts. This is a city of half a million, with a bridge worth all Multnomah county, which thinks little of ten millions a year spent in new buildings, whose railroad depots in the aggregate receive a train every three minutes of the twenty four hours, whose new exchange is finer than any similar edifice ever built, ancient or modern, and which is making a park of fifteen hundred acres, just as a by-play! In traveling from Louisville to St. Louis, last week, I seemed to be passing through one continuous farm of the finest land, under close cultivation, and when you remember this is true in a radius of six hundred miles, that similar centers are North, East and South of us, you cease to wonder that Oregon is forgotten or relegated to romance. But all things have their day and we shall have ours. That which we of new communities and States need especially to look to, is the quality of the flame, not the quantity. Let us be more and more known by characteristic self-reliance, solidity and truth, and by productions of unexampled excellence; the pattern is then set, and when the wave of population comes, the channels are fixed,—the precedents of manhood and energy are established beyond any easy removal or change. And all this is apropos of a question asked me in Kentucky, "whether Oregon is a city!"

HARD TIMES.

We, of Oregon, have heard of hard times at the East. But the hearing of the ear is always different from the seeing of the eye. I cannot report to you the sight of suffering, or of bread riots, though those may have taken place, but if a widespread anxiety is any indication, then these are, indeed, as hard times as the country has ever seen. The air is full of straws showing the wind as fully as a storm could. On business streets wholesale, comparative idleness, retail, an extraordinary display of goods, the marks of prices reduced, and everything pointing to a struggle for existence on the part of the vender. Enter one of these retail stores, and you are treated with distinguished courtesy, during your purchase of fifty cents worth! In the palmiest days of low prices, I have never known as low, as now, for a large portion of what one eats or wears, let alone the luxuries, which people simply do without. A gentleman doing, perhaps, the the largest dry goods business in the city, and whose experience extends over the last forty years, says that cotton goods are lower, even allowing for currency valuation, than in the crises of the past, or at any stage of the market. In his judgment the South is more prosperous than the North to-day, though others, question as to so great an extent of depression. Overproduction seems to be the criminal whom most bring before the bar as the cause of this lamentable state of things, but I am inclined to think over living has far more to do with it. We have as a nation gone wild, and taxed our own vast strength beyond endurance. Like a strong man, who comes to realize that strength is not vitality and that both strength and vitality are dependent upon proper food; and finds in disease, threatened or actual, the limit to elasticity and the necessity for ... and fresh air, so the whole country must learn and is learning a severe lesson in political hygiene, the moral of which, is like the advice to honest Jack Falstaff, "to purge and live cleanly." There are many who seem to think this is the only one of the many usual crises, but unless I am mistaken, one feature common to all other reasons of hardship our land has known, is wanting in this. There is no fictitious excitement or panic, nor can there be said to have been. It is a sober (and for a disease) well behaved Hard Times, who means to do his work, in broad daylight, and restore this generation at least to common sense and thrift. When hard work takes possession of us and economy stops the floodgate of expense, display and luxury, we may look for days of prosperity again, and for Hard Times, like the Arab he is, to fold his tent and flee away. One feature of these days is good—the rich as well as the poor suffer, as they ought, "since the Lord has made them all." The tale of large fortunes gone is told every day. You cannot predicate of many men in business, however extended or seemingly safe their business may appear, that sudden death would not find or force the estate bankrupt. Still, in spite of all this, you will see thousands spending money as though the goose that lays the golden eggs were cackling above ground in "vernal glory." Ten thousand people at a time pay their half-dollar to witness the Lexington horse races, or the games of base ball, which last, by the way, bid fair to be, in exhibitions of skill and possibility of accessory demoralizations, the rivals of oars and turf. I witnessed a game between St. Louis and Chicago, of two weeks since. It was a grand sight in power and skill, but one can, without being dubbed Puritan for it, deplore the excited crowd, in which, as in no other similar exhibition, boys innumerable can take an eager share and wager in the most approved and scientific way on the game.

THE CENTENNIAL.

I hope in a week or two to be in Philadelphia and write you my personal impressions of our greatest national effort. You hear of disappointment in the matter of attendance. I cannot but hope this will only be temporary, and that by the Fourth of July the American people will do their own work justice. The truth must be told, however, that many States, notably New York has exhibited great jealousy of Pennsylvania in this Exhibition, and now throws cold water plentifully. The Western States will not do half what they might and should have done, and if Missouri feeling is any indication, the Centennial at Philadelphia would be a failure. I am glad to state, from the word of friends who have been there that the Exhibition itself is grand—simply nothing like it in the world.

POLITICS

Is an inviting theme, but the politicians were never more at sea. Some invisible ring may know what the great conventions are going to do, but the great men of either party plainly declare their doubts. This week it looks as if the race were to be between Blaine and Tilden, but it is quite as likely some others may have to enter what promises to be an eventful contest in the history of the United States. I hope for such men at the front of either party as will make the result of the election, in either event, a forward step in the morals and manners of the sovereign people. T. L. E.

OREGON.

Young grouse are quite common in the woods near Oregon City.

Mrs. Jane Ross has been appointed postmistress at Milwaukie, Clackamas county.

The governor has appointed Chas. H. Caufield, of Oregon City, notary public for Clackamas county.

The subscription for purchasing instruments for a brass band for Hillsboro is increasing. One hundred and seventy five dollars is already subscribed.

The fishermen at Oregon City have had a splendid catch of salmon for the past week. One or two have been caught which weighed between 40 and 50 pounds.

Messrs W. W. Buck and J. W. Shattuck were elected as justices of the peace for Oregon City precinct, and Messrs John Hansen and E. A. Hudson as constables.

On Monday a son of A. J. Flippin, in Beaverdam precinct, Washington county, fell from a ladder and broke his collar bone. Dr Bailey dressed the wound, and the patient is doing finely.

Little Nelson, son of Mr. W. Cary Johnson, had the misfortune to lose one of his fingers last Sunday. While he and his brother were playing with an ax, the little fellow, by some accident, got his hand on a block of wood which his brother was chopping, and is now minus a little finger.

Information is wanted of John D. Benson, who left Boston 15 years ago for Oregon. He is about 46 years of age, and had a wife and three children when he left for this State. Anyone knowing his whereabouts will confer a favor by addressing his aged father, Henry H. Benson, Boston, Mass.

The people of Nehalem have begun work upon the Nehalem wagon road with a determination to complete it at their own cost of labor and expense. Messrs Emrick and Williamson of Hillsboro, started for Nehalem last Sunday with a good supply of provisions for the men engaged in that work.

A German, recently arrived in Clackamas county from Wisconsin, and counted out $1,600 in twenty dollar pieces one day last week as the purchase money for Mr. Robbin's beautiful farm. This is the class of immigrants Oregon wants, and their number can never be too great or their influx too sudden.

Says the Independent: "On Tuesday evening the Philomathean and Gamma Sigma societies of Forest Grove had their exercises. Mr. Smith delivered the opening address, which was good. Mr. D. C. Latourette gave the farewell address to the graduating class, which is also highly praised. Mr. S. Walker read a poem commemorative of old college days, which was excellent, a real good poem, and Mr. Tamura read an essay that bristled with good points and was full of dry humor."

The Cornelius correspondent of the Independent says: "To-day is one long to be remembered. At a school meeting held in the Jackson school house, district No 9, there was quite a large audience. They transacted the business for which it met in a very pacific manner and adjourned. After which meeting, the school 'marm' offered a complaint to the trustees against the Rev. ——, and the matter was discussed between the trustees, school 'marm' and Rev. ——. Times got a little too hot for Rev. ——, and he fled for refuge. The crowd then left for West Glencoe, where a slight halt was made at Fowler & Son's store. Then they made a grand rush for W. R. Parker's blacksmith shop. The door and streets in front of the shop were crammed and jammed chock a block with men, women and children, all jibbering and jabbering at once. The storm abated, and to-day it is calm and clear, and it is hoped by the good people of this place and vicinity that such a storm will never visit Glencoe again." Wonder what was up!

The Supply Depot of the Body.

The stomach is the grand supply depot of the body, upon which it draws for all the elements needed in the composition of bone, muscle, brain and blood. The liver is an important auxiliary of this mighty organ, and the two are most intimately connected. Nothing so certainly ensures the harmonious action of these viscera, and so completely removes the disorders which simultaneously affect both, as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the most popular American specific for all complaints to which the stomach, liver and bowels are subject. Indigestion, costiveness, inactivity and congestion of the liver, poverty of the blood, debility of the bladder and kidneys, and many other ailments produced by or causing weakness, are entirely removed by its use.

POND'S EXTRACT.—There is in nature a bounteous provision for means of comfort. The Witch Hazel or Hamamelis Virginica contains a juice which has a wider range of action, more prompt certain curative virtues than any Pain Destroyer ever discovered. Pond's Extract contains the entire curative properties of the Witch Hazel in the purest form. Ask your druggist for it when you have a pain or an ache.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment will give more relief in cases of Chronic Rheumatism no matter how severe, than any other article known to medical men. Used internally and externally.

It is often remarked by strangers visiting our state that we show a larger proportion of good horses than any other State in the Union. This, we tell them is owing to two principal reasons, in the first place we breed from the very best stock and in the second place our people use Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders which in our judgment are of incalculable advantage.

The week so far has developed no new features in monetary affairs and a description of their condition epitomized in the phrase a full supply of loanable funds and a very quiet demand given a week ago is equally as applicable now as then The banks are accumulating their resources a little more diligently as the beginning of another harvest year approaches when a more active market is anticipated Notwithstanding the apparently abundant supply of available capital offering for moderately good paying investment the amount in general circulation among the masses is regarded as comparatively small a fact attributable to the dullness which has been experienced in real estate matters the absence of large improvements and the long continued depression in the markets for certain staple articles of domestic produce These circumstances have tended to induce a slow movement of the capital of the country and keep the volume in general circulation down to a low average during the winter and spring seasons The trade of the country lacking the ordinary stimulus has been inconvenienced and retarded but men have also been dissuaded by these facts from entering largely upon purely speculative enterprises and thus while the season has not been one of large profits nearly all classes of business have come through it so far without any serious disturbance or general disaster and accounts for the end of the crop year show matters in a favorable light and demonstrate the safety of the prudent and conservative course which has generally been followed

In San Francisco it is reported that a very large amount of ready money is in the market but the same state of facts in regard to the quantity in general circulation exists that we have noted here The cash proceeds from the immense maturing crops of California can not be long delayed, but prior to that time their influence will be felt and the wheels of trade and commerce will revolve with less friction Interest rates have nominally undergone no change from 1@1½ per cent month ly, in commercial and 9@12 per cent per year in savings banks but the bulk of business is transacted on special terms satisfactory to borrower and lender

Domestic Produce

The market in nearly every article of domestic production is quiet and values show but little movement either up or down For wheat there are now no vessels on hand to load and the foreign and San Francisco markets being unimproved buyers are not at all anxious about making contracts. Freights which have lately been rather tending upward are now about stationary and should any downward disposition be exhibited cargo lots of wheat might make an advance But the prospect of an average surplus in Oregon and it is improbable that charters will be made much lower than present rates, which are £3 5s@3 12s to Cork from San Francisco For this port we hear of no new charters Aside from wheat there is about the usual amount of activity in produce without any special changes to note Oats are now coming forward in limited quantities, the receipts indicating that the surplus is nearly exhausted Provisions are amply supplied and dealers have begun to show a little less anxiety to secure very large lots, as a slight decline is not the most improbable of events, particularly for the more ordinary grades of bacon and lard Dairy products are weaker all round Wool shows no improvement in any direction The Commercial Herald of June 1st, says Oregon wools have not yet made their appearance in San Francisco market They being of low grades will not command the high prices which they did last year While the prices received are not likely to be as high as last year, the general intimation in the above quotation that Oregon wools are of low grade is rather too sweeping for us to allow it to pass without calling attention to its unfairness

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, June 7—Market for wool remains unchanged and the demand is almost exclusively for California as there is a better assortment of this description offering than of any other kind and manufacturers can make better selection California spring 20@25c choice Northern 27@28c Supply of pulled wool large and demand moderate sales range from 40 to 42½c as to quality, for super and X
